

David S. Maurer, AIA

David Maurer, AIA, is president of Maurer Architecture, an award-winning firm in Raleigh that is committed to our downtowns and our historic architectural fabric. Since 1993, David has led Maurer Architecture in completing numerous historic preservation and adaptive reuse projects across North Carolina, many utilizing historic tax credits, and is currently working with many small towns to encourage upper level residential development in their downtowns. He is a specialist on the NC Rehab Code and the NC Existing Building Code, and is a frequent presenter at NC Main Street conferences and Preservation NC conferences on various aspects of rehabilitating our downtowns. David has served as the Chair of the Raleigh Historic Development Commission and is currently serving on the National Register Advisory Committee for the State of North Carolina.

David is also president of TightLines Designs, an architecture firm specializing in small affordable single family homes specifically designed for infill lots in historic and existing communities, working across the country with Habitats, non-profits, and municipalities to provide quality affordable housing for those in need.
